Reference Resources 2004

compiled by Rhonda Barry

Biblical Studies

- Onomasticon
  - "Plural onomastica, from the Greek adjective ὅνομαστικός (naming vocabulary) a list of names of things with similar characteristics." (p. 324)

Rhonda Barry works as Lecturer and Librarian at Mary Andrews College in Sydney. Until recently she worked at Moore Theological College Library where she compiled this list.

Theology

Monoenergism
"The term signifies a belief that the dynamic union between the divine and human natures of Christ can best be described as a matter of single energy (monoenergetic activity) whereby the one Christ, simultaneously man and God in an ineffable and mysterious way, acted within human history in a single divinohuman energy" (p. 227)

Denominations and Sects of the Christian Church

Religions

History

Language

Assyrian dictionary of the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago. Editor, Ignace J. Gelb. Chicago: Oriental Institute, 1956- Vol. 21 (0918986192) $54.00

Lust, J. Greek-English lexicon of the Septuagint. Rev. ed. Stuttgart: Deutsche Bibelgesellschaft, 2003. 3438051249 $86.00

A Simplified Coptic dictionary: Sahidic dialect. Editor, Joaquim Azevedo. Cachoeira, Brazil: Centro de Pesquisa de Literatura Bíblica, Seminario Adventista Latino-Americano de Teologia, Campus IAENE, 2001. 8588816019 $54.00

Ethics

Bretzke, James T. Protestant and Catholic approaches to Christian ethics: a select bibliography of primary English titles. [200-] Author’s affiliation, Jesuit School of Theology-Berkeley, University of San Francisco.

Miscellaneous

Incubation

"The act of sleeping as close as possible to sacred relics with the hope of receiving a cure through a dream in which the holy person diagnoses or corrects the problem. Incubation has continued into the twentieth century, especially in sacred sites along the Mediterranean, as in Tinos in Greece and in central Europe, as in Manizell, Austria." (p. 254)

Encyclopedia of prayer and praise. Editor, Mark Water. Alresford: John Hunt, 2004. 1842981218 $70.00

