

The ANZTLA *E*Journal

Australian and New Zealand Theological Library Association  No. 24 (2020)

*Sydney Harbour Bridge – decking from a cross lateral, Thursday 11th
Dec 1930.
Photography by Rev. Frank Cash*

This historically significant image of the Sydney Harbour Bridge, one of many treasures within the Samuel Marsden Archives at Moore College, will be preserved for future generations thanks to Community Heritage Grants from the National Library of Australia. While Erin Mollenhauer's article details how grants have assisted with the Archives at Moore College, it also raises awareness of the existence of such grants and prompts one to consider which gems within our collections may warrant preservation.

Rebecca Zimmerman used an Atla-ANZTLA scholarship to complete three online courses from the American Library Association; she describes the nature of each of these courses and the value they have brought to her practice as a librarian in a developing country.

Four librarians from Australia and New Zealand attended the Atla Annual during 2019. Their report provides highlights from this conference and encourages others to attend given it was such a 'positive and worthwhile' experience. As it happens, this may be possible for many as, due to COVID-19, this year's conference has been reimaged as Atla Annual 2020 Online.

Last, but not least, the ANZTLA Statistics from 2019 are presented. Once again we are indebted to Kerrie Stevens for the time and energy she devotes to reporting these for us. It would be fabulous to have even more responses next year.

In this non-conference issue of The ANZTLA EJournal we welcome contributions that will be of interest to our community. Have you considered sharing one of your projects or something that has captured your attention at work? We'd love to publish your articles!

Kerrie Stevens & Eve James

Editorial team

Contents

- 2 Moore College Library's Community Heritage Grant Journey
- 10 Atla-ANZTLA Scholarship Recipient Report
- 13 Australian and New Zealand Librarians Attend Atla Annual 2019
- 17 ANZTLA 2019 Statistics