Section One: New and Changed Subject Headings
compiled by Joanna Hause

The subject headings in this list were selected from the Library of Congress Subject Headings Weekly Lists, available on the Library of Congress web site at: http://lcweb.loc.gov/catdir/cpso/cpso.html#subjects.

This list consists of headings selected from the Library's list numbers 30—40 of 2008.

The following conventions are used, as in previous lists:
Headings are in a single alphabetical sequence, preceded by MARC tags. The record number (Library of Congress control number) follows the heading. The absence of the instruction [May Subd Geog] means that the heading is not to be further divided by place.

The following print constants appear:

> UF = Used For
> BT = Broader Term
> RT = Related Term
> SA = See Also
> * Asterisks and highlighting mark lines (or paragraphs) that are CHANGES.

Selected changes to free-floating subdivisions are at the end of the list.

LCSH proposed by non-U.S. library

The entries in this list were selected from the Library of Congress, Cataloging Policy and Support Office's Library of Congress Classification Weekly Lists, 31 (July 30, 2008) to 42 (October 15, 2008).

"Weekly lists of additions and changes to the Library of Congress Classification (LCC) are posted on the Cataloging Policy and Support Office Web site as they are approved"-- Library of Congress Classification (LCC) Weekly List [at http://www.loc.gov/aba/cataloging/classification/weeklylists/].

The class letter identifies the schedule to which changes and additions are made. New captions are accompanied by a full hierarchy as necessary; changes are indicated by a cancelled line and the addition of a new line. Changes are also highlighted in gray. Numbers that appear in square brackets are not printed in the printed editions of the classification schedules. They are shown on this list only to indicate the location of the corresponding caption or reference within the classification.

This list also includes selected changes and additions outside the B-BX classes relating to religious topics or library science.

RDA Update

Nathalie Schulz (Secretary, Joint Steering Committee for Development of RDA) has announced that the full draft of RDA will be available the week of November 3 for Constituency Review. It will be issued in a preliminary version of the software which will have Browse and Quick Search functionality. A URL that will allow for viewing and printing the full draft will be provided at that time. (Announcement posted October 23, 2008. For a few more details, see http://www.collectionscanada.gc.ca/jsc/fulldraftdelay.html)

Getting Ready for RDA: Part 1, FRBR

While the publication of the finished code, RDA (Resource Description and Access), is now projected for third quarter of 2009, and the implementation is perhaps a year after that, it is not too soon to begin to understand it and its implications for cataloging. To that end, I propose to write a series of articles in TCB exploring those acronyms, FRBR, FRAD, RDA, and how they will impact our work, building on the RDA update presentation I made at the 2008 ATLA Annual Conference in Ottawa. I hope this will benefit those who could not attend the Ottawa Conference and those who were there, but would like to hear it again.

Resource Description and Access (RDA) is built upon the theory expounded in the works, Functional Requirements for Bibliographic Records (FRBR) and Functional Requirements for Authority Data (FRAD), both created by Working Groups of the International Federation of Library Associations and Institutions (IFLA). In this first article, I will present a simplified explanation of FRBR.

FRBR is a conceptual model designed to "serve as the basis for relating specific attributes and relationships (reflected in the record as discrete data elements) to the various tasks that users perform when consulting bibliographic records." (FRBR: Final Report, p. 3). Although I am neither a philosopher nor a theoretician, I will attempt to give you a glimpse of that conceptual model.

Cataloging has always been based on conceptual models and those models have been increasing in complexity as the resources we catalog and the world in which we live has increased in complexity. The earliest library catalogs were inventories, simple lists of items owned by a particular library. To use a FRBR/RDA term, this was a "one-entity model," since the only entity recognized was the one copy being cataloged. Rare books and manuscripts catalogs often represent one-entity catalogs, since they are describing single unique copies.

A "two-entity model" is exemplified by catalogs which recognize items that come in multiple editions. The records describe manifestations such as 1st edition, 2nd edition, etc.

A "three-entity model" is exemplified by catalogs which recognize texts, as well as editions and copies, using uniform titles to collocate editions and copies with texts. Most library catalogs today would be considered "three-entity" catalogs.

FRBR is proposing a "four-entity model" which includes work in addition to texts, editions, and copies. Thus "work" in the sense of an overarching body of material which can be manifested in different forms by different persons is separate from "text" which can be issued in many different editions by many different persons.

FRBR is an entity-relationship model (ER). An ER model is a technique that specifies the structure of a conceptual model. There are three kinds of things allowed in an ER model: entities, relationships, and attributes.

Entities are things, either physical or abstract, so they can literally be anything. Relationships are interactions among entities. Attributes are properties or characteristics of either entities or relationships. FRBR has taken all the bibliographic entities that have been identified and sorted them into three groups.

Group One entities are: Work, which is realized through: Expression, which is embodied in: Manifestation, which is exemplified by: Item. First, we need to define these terms. Work is an abstract entity, defined as a distinct intellectual or artistic creation. Expression is an abstract entity, defined as the specific intellectual or artistic form that a work takes each time it is "realized." Manifestation is a concrete entity, defined as the physical embodiment of an expression of a work. Item is a concrete entity, defined as a single exemplar of a manifestation.

Group Two entities are: Corporate Bodies and Persons. Group Two entities represent those responsible for the intellectual or artistic content, the physical production and dissemination, or the custodianship of the entities in Group One. Thus, a Work is created by one or more persons or corporate bodies; an Expression is realized by one or more persons or corporate bodies; a Manifestation is produced by one or more persons or corporate bodies; an Item is owned by one or more persons or corporate bodies.

Group Three entities are: Concept, Object, Event, Place. Group Three entities represent the subject of works. A Work may have as its subject one or more than one Concept, Object, Event and/or Place. A Work may also have a subject relationship with one or more than one Work, Expression, Manifestation, Item, Person or Corporate Body.

Each entity has attributes associated with it. Inherent attributes are not only physical characteristics (physical medium and dimensions of an object), but also those which might be characterized as "labeling information" (statements appearing on the title page, cover or container). Externally imputed attributes are assigned identifiers such as ISSN or thematic catalog number. Attributes inherent in an entity can usually be determined by examining the entity itself; those that are imputed often require reference to an external source.

Entities have Relationships with one another. Relationships connect Group One entities to each other.

> The Work: "Agnes Grey / by Ana Bronte" is realized through the Expression: "Dutch version, translated by Emy Giphart" is embodied by the Manifestation: "Amsterdam : Veen, 1962" is exemplified by the Item: "Copy 1 owned by ATLA."

Relationships connect Group One entities to Group Two entities through four relationship types.

> Created by links from Person or Corporate Body to Work;
> Realized by links from Person or Corporate Body to Expression;
> Produced by links from Person or Corporate Body to Manifestation;
> Owned by links from Person or Corporate Body to Item.

Relationships connect the entity Work to all other entities by Subject. The "has as subject" relationship indicates that any of the entities in the model, including another work, may be the subject of a work.

> Work:
> May be about a Concept, Object, Event, Place
> May be about a Person, Corporate Body
> May be about an Expression, Manifestation, Item
> May be about another Work

Links ensure that a Subject is linked to its individual Work and that all Works relevant to a particular subject are linked to that subject.

Next time, I will look at the companion work, Functional Requirements for Authority Data, and how it conceives of authority records.

Getting to Know Your Colleagues
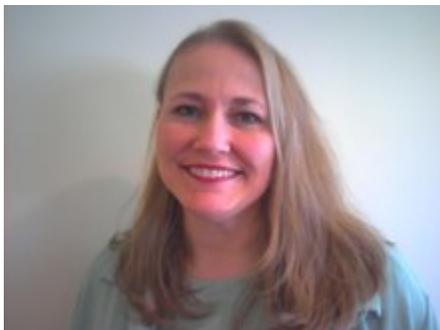

Hello, my name is Donna Campbell. Currently, my job title is Acquisitions and Cataloging Librarian at Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia, PA. Before that I was an Assistant Professor at Missouri State University, teaching cataloging as well as cataloging music, foreign language, and special collections materials. The bulk of my cataloging experience and training comes from thirteen years at the William and Gayle Cook Music Library, Indiana University in Bloomington, IN. I always get a bit nostalgic about my time there because my supervisors were not only top-notch music catalogers in the field but they were also excellent teachers and enjoyable to work with. I am very grateful for their training and encouragement and ushering me into the field of professional librarianship.

While working on my MLS with a Specialization in Music Librarianship at Indiana University, I began investigating the possibility of using my degree and experience in the field of theological librarianship in order to provide service to pastors and pastors-to-be. My life has been changed for the better because of a few pastors in my life so it seemed good to use my gifts to help other pastors. After ten years of waiting, God opened the doors for me to work at Westminster Theological Seminary in October 2007.

Professionally, I especially enjoy the intricacies of authority control. Previously, I was a NACO-Music participant and now plan to pursue being a participant in the ATLA funnel project. One quote I enjoy is from an OCLC button: "Cataloging IS a public service."

CPSO Has New Name and Email Address

The Cataloging Policy and Support Office (CPSO) at the Library of Congress has changed its name to the Policy and Standards Division. Their new email address is policy@loc.gov. (Announced on the LC Web site at http://www.loc.gov/catdir/cpso/psdemail.html)

Form/Genre Headings

A "FAQ on form/genre headings" (PDF, 60 KB) has been posted on the LC Web site (http://www.loc.gov/catdir/cpso/genre_form_faq.pdf). It contains responses to thirty-three questions related to the meaning and use of form/genre headings as well as issues of authority control and the relationship of form/genre headings to LCSH.

440/490/8XX

Just in case you haven't gotten the word, it's time to change our ways (if you haven't already…). The implementation date of October 24, 2008 given to PCC members has passed, and so has the 440 (See http://www.loc.gov/catdir/pcc/Field440.pdf). From now on, PCC members will be coding series titles either 490 0 (1st indicator "0" meaning "not traced") or 490 1/8XX (1st indicator "1" meaning "traced differently"). It sounds as though OCLC will be working on a way to make a global change of 440's to 490 1/8XX's, so it won't be necessary to update records that already have a 440 in them.

Glenn E. Patton (Director, WorldCat Quality Management) posted a note on the OCLC-CAT listserv on 10/29/2008 reporting that OCLC is planning to implement this change in series tracing in the future although no definitive decisions have yet been made. Until then, Patton says "if libraries wish to discontinue use of 440 now, they may do so. No MARC changes are necessary to accommodate the new PCC guidelines, since they represent essentially a change in policy."

Preliminary Thoughts

"Buy good books and read them; the best books are the commonest, and the last editions are always the best if the editors are not blockheads."–Lord Chesterfield to his Son, March 19, 1750.
