During its second year, the International Theological Librarian Education Taskforce (ITLET) worked on two initiatives to achieve our charge—“to strengthen and connect theological and religious studies librarians worldwide by identifying resources, creating educational opportunities, and developing skill enhancement materials through collaboration efforts.”

The first initiative was continued development of the Theological Librarian's Handbook. The introductory volume is nearing completion and will be published open access by the end of this year. The second volume of the series will be chosen this next year and the writing process will begin.

The second initiative was the first ever Atla International Theological Librarian Leadership Institute held at Atla Annual 2019 in Vancouver, BC. Three global theological librarians attended the Institute: Arnel Faller from Silliman University Divinity School in Philippines, Roman Shvets from Ukrainian Evangelical Theological Seminary in Ukraine, and Nalini Premadish from Pacific Theological College
